1. Make up your mind and stay there. The hardest part of business ownership is keeping your mind open when the doors of your business keep threatening to close.
2. Get some prepaid cards! You'd be amazed how handy a prepaid card is when running an online business. Some of my favorites are www.netspend.com and www.accountnow.com.
3. NEVER EVER EVER bring your family members or friends into business with you UNLESS it is a spouse and your children. The fastest way to close a business is to open it up to the wrong people. Family members and friends will not and cannot take you seriously, therefore, they won't give it their all.
4. Invest in your business! Don't be cheap; spare no expense. The worst type of business owner is one who is cheap, or one whose money tells him/her what to do. You are the master of the money that comes your way. You need to tell it what it is going to do for you. Stop negotiating with paper.
5. Having a hard time getting into work mode when working from home? The way to fix that problem is to simply create an office for yourself in your home, and dress up as if you are going to work in someone else's office. If you don't have the space or an extra room to create an office, just tidy up your space and make it look professional. The mind needs to believe that it is at work before it'll charge up and want to do some work.
